

About this Training Program

Encountering wildlife, especially when unexpected, can be hazardous for anyone working or venturing into the wilderness. This course covers a range of topics, from wildlife identification and behavioural traits to survival strategies, for a wide spectrum of potentially hazardous wildlife. In doing so, we have attempted to place an appropriate amount of emphasis on each of the topics to match it with the needs of our end user - you. The section on bears encompasses a large portion of the course, while many of the other animals covered only take a minute or two to review.

The average student will require approximately 20-25 minutes to complete both the course and quiz.
